The King St x National Reconciliation Week colouring competition is open to all children surrounding King St under the age of 15, including the children of Guardian Childcare & Education King St.

Once you have created your masterpiece, fill out the contact details above and drop your entry into Guardian Day Care Centre - Level 1-3/45 King St Bowen Hills (Level 1 of the King St carpark). All entries must be received by Friday the 15th of July.

Your entry will be included on the display wall at Guardian Day Care Centre.

While we wish we could have all artwork as winners, the top 15 entries will win:

- a book on Australian Indigenous stories and history
- $50 King St voucher

Winning entries will also be featured in the King St newsletter and social media channels. We would love to include a photo of the artists of the winning entries and will gain permission through the parent/guardian listed above.

Artwork created by Tamika Grant-Iramu

Tamika's creative practice has continued to explore her identity, finding ways of connecting with the different threads of her Papua New Guinean, European and Torres Strait Islander heritage. The carving techniques and storytelling aesthetics of Torres Strait Islander and Papua New Guinean culture combined with the Western influences of Tamika's upbringing converge in her emergent practice as she explores and grows her own story.

You can view more of her artwork in the Machinery St Gallery window just off King St.
